Dear TGB Customers,

During a quality control inspection of our most recent UK stock (on Friday 06/07/18) we became aware that there is a bottle deformation in the inside of some of these new bottles. There is good news and bad news concerning this finding.

The bad news is that some of the new bottles are below the advertised volume. Please be assured this has no effect on the quality of the product inside. The good news is that we are offering these bottles for 35-40% discount to all UK TGB customers. This sale will continue until current affected stock sells out. We have already corrected this error in production, and are committed to offering you the highest quality gels possible.

If you have any questions regarding this announcement, please send us an email to contact@thegelbottle.com and we will be happy to assist you. (Please allow up to 3-5 working days for a response to your message).

Please do accept our deepest apologies. We will continue to develop the products that our customers love, but with more extensive quality testing to ensure that this situation remains an isolated incident.

Kind regards,

Team TGB
